OVERVIEW

About Pre-placement Training

Campus placement drives follow a familiar pattern: an online aptitude test, a group discussion, a technical round, and an HR interview. Many capable students are filtered out in the first two rounds simply because they have not practised the format.

This training prepares you for each round in the order you will face it. Every topic is explained step by step, then practised with timed questions of the kind companies actually use, so speed and accuracy improve together.

WHO IT'S FOR

- Final-year and pre-final-year students preparing for campus placements
- Graduates preparing for off-campus drives and company recruitment tests
- Anyone who wants to improve aptitude speed and interview confidence

WHAT'S COVERED

In detail

01 Quantitative aptitude

Percentages, ratios, averages, profit and loss, time and work, time-speed-distance, simple and compound interest, permutations and probability, with shortcut methods and timed practice.

02 Logical reasoning

Series, coding-decoding, blood relations, directions, seating arrangements, syllogisms, puzzles, and data interpretation from tables and charts.

03 Verbal ability

Reading comprehension, sentence correction, fill in the blanks, synonyms and antonyms, and para-jumbles.

04 Group discussion

How GDs are scored, how to open, add value, and summarise, with mock GDs on current and abstract topics and individual feedback.

05 HR interview

Answering 'Tell me about yourself', strengths and weaknesses, and situational questions; body language, dress, and online interview etiquette.

06 Mock tests

Full-length timed aptitude tests in placement format, with a review of every wrong answer.
